

The first of these is the fact that the text is written in a very early hand, and is therefore of great value for the study of the language. The second is the fact that the text is written in a very early hand, and is therefore of great value for the study of the language. The third is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great
 value for the study of the language. The fourth is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great
 value for the study of the language. The fifth is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great
 value for the study of the language. The sixth is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great
 value for the study of the language. The seventh is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great
 value for the study of the language. The eighth is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great
 value for the study of the language. The ninth is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great
 value for the study of the language. The tenth is the fact that the text is written in a very
 early hand, and is therefore of great value for the study of the language.

[illegible]